

Artiom Kovnatsky <artiom.kovnatsky@gmail.com>

IMPORTANT ADDENDUM - Claim No.: S-26-01720899 / Additional Evidence of Bad Faith and Contractual Breach

1 message

Artiom Kovnatsky <artiom.kovnatsky@gmail.com>
To: claims@roland-rechtsschutz.de

Mon, Apr 27, 2026 at 3:52 PM

Dear ROLAND Team,

In addition to my previous appeal sent earlier today, I am submitting further critical evidence that confirms the severity and the commercial nature of the breach by GitHub/Microsoft:

1. Ongoing Charges despite Blocking: Enclosed is a receipt showing that GitHub continued to charge my credit card for the "Pro" subscription while my account was fully blocked (also have screenshots of fractual future payments). They collected fees for services they simultaneously rendered inaccessible. This constitutes unjust enrichment.
2. Lack of Notification (Hidden Block): I was never formally notified of the restriction. I only discovered the "404 Error" by chance when a collaborator attempted to access a project link. This lack of transparency violates standard digital service obligations in the EU.
3. Deprivation of Data Access: The block was so restrictive that I was denied access to my own proprietary files and repositories, making it impossible to perform my business functions, even for linked Organizations that were technically "active" but unmanageable due to the personal account block.

This evidence proves that the incident was not a minor glitch, but a total failure of service while maintaining financial collection—a clear "contract and property law" dispute.

NOTE-1: Furthermore, please be advised that the unjustified block caused the immediate shutdown of my professional business website (www.artiomkovnatsky.com), which is hosted via the impacted GitHub infrastructure. This resulted in a complete blackout of my digital presence, causing direct reputational damage and preventing potential clients from reaching me. This further proves the massive 'Störung des Geschäftsbetriebs' and qualifies the event as a significant legal claim under my policy's business protection.

NOTE-2: For verification of my documentation standards and procedural diligence, you may reference my current legal representation at mieterengel.de (Partner Lawyer: Dr. Stephan Rübben). My records of this incident are maintained with the same level of professional accuracy. I am currently seeking a specialized IT-lawyer to handle this high-stakes case and would appreciate it if ROLAND could recommend a partner firm specializing in International IT & Intellectual Property Law, or confirm cover for a lawyer of my choosing.

Danke.

Best regards,

Dr. Artiom Kovnatsky

On Mon, Apr 27, 2026 at 3:23 PM Artiom Kovnatsky <artiom.kovnatsky@gmail.com> wrote:

Dear ROLAND Team,

I am writing to formally appeal your decision dated April 27, 2026, regarding the rejection of legal cover for my case against GitHub/Microsoft. Your rejection was based on the premise that the blocking of a GitHub account does not fall under "investment goods transactions" or "ancillary transactions." I believe this interpretation is factually incorrect in the context of a modern digital consultancy.

Please consider the following new evidence and legal arguments:

1. Proof of Investment and Business Nature (Tax Declaration 2025) Enclosed is my official tax declaration for 2025. It clearly demonstrates that my secondary self-employed activity as a Data Science Consultant is a legitimate business entity under § 19 UStG. As shown in the "Ergänzende Angaben," I have invested significant capital (resulting in a loss of -4,099.07 €) specifically to build IT infrastructure for upcoming projects in 2026/2027. My GitHub account is the central "investment good" (Investitionsgut) of this infrastructure, housing proprietary code, scientific preprints, and the intellectual property necessary for future revenue.

2. Admitted Liability by GitHub Enclosed is a statement from GitHub support ("Charlie") dated April 23, 2026. GitHub explicitly admits that my account was flagged and restricted erroneously by their automated systems. This is no longer a question of "if" my rights were violated, but a matter of determining the legal consequences of this admitted breach.

3. Direct Interference with Business Operations (Störung des Geschäftsbetriebs) In German law, this constitutes an "Eingriff in den eingerichteten und ausgeübten Gewerbebetrieb." The unjustified blocking of my central development platform directly caused:

- Loss of Reputation: My scientific community contributions (e.g., Zenodo/SVE records) and client-facing repositories were rendered inaccessible, damaging my professional standing.
- Interruption of Momentum: The loss of access halted the "accumulation of momentum" for my SOTA (State-of-the-Art) projects, which is a quantifiable business damage.

4. Legal Necessity for Cause Determination The legal dispute is not merely about restoring access (which was done after my documented pressure), but about establishing the root cause and liability to prevent future recurrences that threaten my long-term investments. This is an "ancillary transaction" (Nebengeschäft) essential to protecting my business assets.

Given that the opposing party has already admitted the error, the "prospect of success" (Erfolgsaussichten) for a legal claim regarding damages is exceptionally high.

I request that you re-evaluate this claim in light of the enclosed tax and correspondence evidence. I am prepared to escalate this matter to the Insurance Ombudsman should this request be denied without considering these specific business-investment links.

Best regards,
Dr. Artiom Kovnatsky

The screenshot shows a GitHub support conversation. The first message is from GitHub Support, dated 4 days ago, with the subject 'GitHub commented 4 days ago'. The second message is from Artiom Kovnatsky, dated 3 weeks ago, with the subject 'Artiom Kovnatsky commented 3 weeks ago'. The conversation is displayed in a web browser window with a Chrome address bar showing the URL 'support.github.com/ticket/personal/Q/4253477'. The browser's taskbar at the bottom shows various open applications and the system clock indicating 'Mon 27, Apr 14:57'.

GitHub commented 4 days ago (GitHub Support)

Hello,

Our apologies for the delay in getting back to you; we are currently dealing with higher than usual request volumes and are working to respond to priority issues such as yours as quickly as possible.

Sometimes our abuse detecting systems highlight accounts that need to be manually reviewed.

We've cleared the restrictions from your account, so you have full access to GitHub again.

Please let me know if you need anything else.

Best regards,
Charlie

Artiom Kovnatsky commented 3 weeks ago

Would you like to provide any additional information or context that would be helpful for our review of your reinstatement request?

My account has been flagged, which has disabled GitHub Copilot and halted all GitHub Actions. This is currently paralyzing my professional development work at stenon.

Please perform an immediate manual review to lift the flag and restore these services.

Thank you.

Does your claim involve content on GitHub or npm.js?

github

What is the username and repository or package name that was impacted?

skovnats

Why are you requesting reinstatement?

account-not-visible

Have you previously contacted GitHub about this claim?

no

Confirm notice

confirmed

On Mon, Apr 27, 2026 at 2:43 PM <claims@roland-rechtsschutz.de> wrote:

Guten Tag Artiom Kovnatsky, mit dieser E-Mail erhalten Sie die Unterlagen der ROLAND-Unternehmensgruppe als pdf-Datei.

Wenn Sie noch nicht über den Acrobat-Reader verfügen, so können Sie ihn kostenlos von Adobe unter <http://get.adobe.com/de/reader/> herunterladen.

Haben Sie noch Fragen oder Anmerkungen, mailen Sie an claims@roland-rechtsschutz.de

Mit freundlichen Grüßen
ROLAND-Unternehmensgruppe

Diese e-mail (inklusive etwaiger Anhänge) ist vertraulich und nur für den Adressaten bestimmt. Wenn Sie diese e-mail irrtümlich erhalten haben, machen wir Sie darauf aufmerksam, dass Ihnen eine Kenntnisnahme, eine Vervielfältigung oder Weitergabe nicht gestattet ist. Bitte informieren Sie uns umgehend, löschen Sie die e-mail und vernichten Sie etwaige Ausdrücke.

 github-skovnats-receipt-2026-04-09.pdf
58K